Dear Sir or Madam,

I'm sure over the years, your school has faced the frustration of connection hangs and dropouts that the old generation of wireless was renowned for. Now see where the future of wireless in the classroom is heading, with a hands on demo of the latest 802.11n managed wireless technology.

I am planning on putting together a Meru Networks demonstration day, looking at practical real-world examples of the latest generation of wireless in the classroom and how it can be applied to solve ongoing pains.

The demonstration shows how two main common classroom wireless headaches faced by many schools can be solved by very recent developments:

-“The classroom logon” - a 30 machine simultaneous logon to one wireless access point...how quick can all pupils get connected and on task?

-“On-demand video” - a demo showing how DVD quality multicast video streaming to 30 concurrent devices is no longer a pipe-dream.

The demos are very interactive (you get to actually use the devices and test the resilience of the technology) and it certainly raises a smile or two as you try and push the performance of the system to breaking point!

At this stage, I am just trying to understand if this is something that would be of interest for you and I have two dates in mind that I would like your feedback on:

-21st April

-28th April

The day will be held at the Ergo offices in Ruddington, Nottingham.

If you could fire back an email with an indication of which date would work best and whether this is something that would be of interest to you by the 24th March that would be most helpful.

Sincerely,

Julie Morton
